“Did you have a good day at school?” Luna GrayPaws asked her children, Miles and Meg.

But before they could answer, their dad, Maverick, called out: “The boxes of strawberries and raspberries are here!”

The GrayPaws family owns
the well-stocked Honeysuckle Hollow General Store.

“Oh, kids, can you help your dad and me make room for the berries?” Luna asked.

“Sure, Mom!” said Meg.

So as the delivery workers carried box after box into the store, Meg held the door while Miles, Luna, and Maverick cleared space.

The workers were all done
and just about to leave
when Miles peeked
inside a box.

“Hey, this is full
of lemons!”
he cried in surprise.

“Lemons? Not berries?”
asked Luna, worriedly.

Quickly, Meg and Miles
checked the other crates—
and they were all filled
with lemons, too.

“Oh no, we need berries—
not lemons!” said Maverick.

“Sorry, we can’t take
them back,” the driver said, “but we’ll bring your berries soon. And you can keep all the lemons—
no charge!”

“What will we do with
all these lemons?”
groaned Maverick,
as the truck drove away.

In two seconds flat,
Miles and Meg had
a brilliant idea.

“My Woodland Schoolhouse library needs more books,”
Miles began.

“So let’s use all the lemons to make lemonade...” said Meg.

“...and sell it,”
continued Miles.

“And give the money
to the school to buy new library books!”

After a quick chat, the GrayPaws parents agreed.
“But kids, please hurry so we’ll have room for our huge berry shipment.”

The next day, Miles and Meg asked all their school friends for help—
and that very afternoon,
the work began.

Some of the kids helped
to set up a lemonade
stand right outside the general store.

The Cares-a-Lot
kindergartners made
a colorful sign for the lemonade stand.

The Scamperscoot family gave extra sugar from their Scoops & Sprinkles Ice Cream Shop.

---

The Curlicues loaned pitchers, glassware, and measuring cups from their Pass-the-
Pasta restaurant.

Other friends helped Meg and Miles squeeze
the lemons and prepare
the lemonade.

The lemonade stand was a huge hit with all the woodland creatures
who came to shop.

Miles and Meg had to keep running back inside
the store for more and more lemons.

The Whiskerellis ordered
a big batch of lemonade
to serve at their Sweets &
Treats food truck.

Even the Woofwinkles
came by with the children
from Li'l Luvs & Hugs Nursery to try some fresh lemonade.

By the end of the week,
every single lemon
was gone from
the general store.

“Perfect!” said Maverick,
“Now there’s room
for all the boxes
of berries being
delivered tomorrow.”

“Kids, you did a wonderful job raising funds to turn lemons into library books!”
said Luna.

The GrayPaws laughed
as they each lifted a final
glass of lemonade
in celebration.

Lil' WOODZEEZ

Miles and Meg GrayPaws, and their parents, Luna and Maverick, are happy when a big shipment of berries arrives at their Honeysuckle Hollow General Store as planned. But when it turns out the boxes contain lemons, not berries, and they can't be returned, the GrayPaws family is stumped. What will they do with a store full of lemons?

Then Miles and Meg come up with a terrific idea: a way to help solve both the lemon dilemma and a problem at the Woodland Schoolhouse library!
